Bouncy Castle Design - PIPA & RPII Testing

We recommend that inflatables are tested annually not only to ensure their safety but also to prolong their useable life by using the annual test as an opportunity to conduct preventative maintenance and carry out small regular repairs.

All inflatable play equipment that falls within the scope of the PIPA scheme should carry a PIPA tag and be listed in the database behind the site The PIPA scheme is supported by the whole industry and was developed in partnership with the Health and Safety Executive.

Not all inflatable play devices are covered by the standard for example devices classified as toys, devices designed for use in pools and privately owned devices not hired out for reward. Our Managing Director is a Certified Member of the Register of Play Inspectors International, so where the PIPA standard does not apply, Inflatables may be tested for adherence to RPII standards.

Please note that for PIPA and RPII tests you must bring along both the fan and the pegs used with the inflatable.

A PIPA tag means:

- Designed to recognised standard based on safety
- Tested by nationally qualified inspector
- Equipment approved for commercial use

The PIPA scheme delivers:

- Improved safety for your children
- HSE recognised best practice
- Quality assurance
- Certified Initial test
- Certified annual testing
